20 Only Youths' and Young Men's Long-Pant "WEARBETTERS" On Sale $14.95

Smart Norfolk Pinch-back and Saque Styles, Reg. $16.00 to 21.00

There's an old saying that you can have too much of a "good thing." And the truth of the adage has evidently come to be acknowledged in our Boys' and Young Men's Clothing Section. For these smart Suits are "new-comers."

And except for the fact that they brought rather too freely we wouldn't be offering choice of $16.00 to $21.00 values for $14.95. For when it comes to replacing them we have to pay 25 per cent more than we did for these. A fixed store policy demands a speedy lowering of this stock, hence the Special Saturday Sale.

You may choose from smart new Norfolk pinch-back and saque two or three-piece styles, in good serviceable tweeds, wools, wools, or in other smart effects, in several colorings. They bear the "Hall Mark" of high-class tailoring and are quite unusual in appearance. Shoulders are well shaped and collar fits snugly. Pants hang smartly and have nice medium width legs, two hip and two side pockets and watch pocket, well lined and finished throughout. Sizes 24, 26, 28 and 30. Regularly $16.00 to $21.00. On Sale Saturday. $14.95

in Absorbing Story With an Atmosphere of the Sea.

"When a Man Sees Red," a special super de luxe William Fox photoplay, founded on the Larry Evans story of "The Painted Lady," which was in the Saturday Evening Post, with the present William Fox at the Empress Theatre on the first three days of next week.

As Luther Smith, William Fox gives a forceful and vital impression of a tough and ready sailor, rises above his surroundings and always keeps in mind the boyhood teachings of his mother.

Arriving home from a long voyage he finds that his mother had died of a broken heart caused by her being seduced by a brutal sea captain and that his mother broken in health conditions to her son the tragedy had begun. In his absence, Smith, while reading the captain and in a fight that ensues, won the mastery of the ship, Smith then leaves the ship at night and goes to the sea. When he returns he is the one responsible for his sister's death.

MILDRED HARRIS
SOON ELEVATED TO FILM STARDOM

Los Angeles is said to contain more beautiful girls than any city in the world. And, by the same token, it is the center of more deal houses than any city in the world.

The career of the world's moving picture actresses, Los Angeles is the place towards which aspirants for screen honors constantly flock. Here, where folk heads have been turned by local prize winners to the city of the Angels, only to find that thousands of other girls, all just as anxious to appear in motion pictures, and as pretty, or even prettier, than the one who has won the prize.

One girl, however, who was more fortunate than the rest, is Mildred Harris, who will shortly be seen at the Majestic theatre the first half of next week, when "The Doctor and the Woman," the newest Jewel production is presented. Fair smiled, benignly when Miss Harris arrived at Los Angeles with the result that she obtained a few engagements in the more prominent houses as an "extra."

One factor which stood in the screen actress's favor, was her wonderful personality. It was this that attracted the attention of Lela Weber, considered one of the foremost motion picture stars.

NEXT WEEK'S ATTRACTIONS
AT THE PANTHEATRE

One of the famous dancing acts can accomplish almost as much as a human being with a routine of tricks that many people would have trouble remembering.

As this is the laughing bill of the night, it is natural that a monologist, singer and yodeller should be among the features. In this case it is Billy Ziegler, best known to vaudeville patrons as "A Corker in Cork."

The added attraction to this six act bill will be the famous "Men's Day at the Races." This offering is built for laughing purposes only. Mr. Gagliardi is a trifle similar to some of the American comedians, and his charges demonstrate that members of the monkey family the master of the ship they had just left was the man who was responsible for his sister's death. Smith vows to bring the Captain to justice.

Stopping at the same port was a private yacht with a party of men and women aboard from San Francisco. One of the girls, known as "The Painted Lady" while in a native cafe is attracted to the handsome sailor and their friendship ripens into love. She tells him that she is not the sort of a girl for him. The next day the yacht leaves the harbor.

Smith sets sail to search for the sea captain but is unable to locate the ship. He returns to the island just before a terrific storm comes up. This storm drives the yacht, on the rocks wrecking it, and casting the girl on the beach.

She is rescued by the captain of the ship, but Smith had left. He tries to make love to her, but she repulses him. In the end, the man who is the one responsible for his sister's death, the captain, comes to the island and tells Smith to tell her to the highest bidder among the sailors.

Smith hearing the commotion, arrives in time to save the girl, and in a fight that follows kills the Captain. Smith then takes "The Painted Lady" to his bride.

MARY PICKFORD
IN FAMOUS STORY,
HARTE'S 'MILLS'

While several of last week's fascinating tales of the days of old and the days of gold in California have been transferred to the screen, it is the story of Mary Pickford, "America's Sweetheart," to translate to celluloid Mr. Harte's great feminine creation, "Mills," that is the highlight of the production of this picture. It is a story that is more like her favorite picture, "The Sign of the Cross," than anything she has done since the production of that photoplay more than four years ago.

One girl, however, who was more fortunate than the rest, is Mildred Harris, who will shortly be seen at the Majestic theatre the first half of next week, when "The Doctor and the Woman," the newest Jewel production is presented. Fair smiled, benignly when Miss Harris arrived at Los Angeles with the result that she obtained a few engagements in the more prominent houses as an "extra."

THE BIRTH OF A NATION,
THRILLING FILM SPECTACLE,
OPENS ON MONDAY AT EMPIRE

Tense Dramatic Action and Numerous Battle Scenes—Striking Records in Big City—Shows Feats of War, Political Ambition, Revenge in North and South Struggle.

D. W. Griffith's mighty spectacle, "The Birth of a Nation," will be shown at the Empire theatre for three days, commencing Monday, June 17.

Nothing like this wonderful attraction has ever been seen upon the local boards. It covers a wide range of American history, and touches upon the highest points of interest in the great events that led up to and terminated the Civil War. The forces that were played in producing this crisis is traced from its inception to its abolition. While the basic theme is historical, it is founded on the fundamental one of true drama. The forces which make for these results have been marvellously shown in a way that was never dreamed of before.

These directors of vast spectacles have dealt with hundreds of thousands of people in the past. Griffith employs vast armies of his actors. Three thousand horses pass before your view in wild dashes over miles of country roadways. The decisive battles of the Civil War are reproduced in faithful detail and you see these conflicts fought again just as they were waged 50 years ago. Cities were built up only to be destroyed to lend force and verity to the dramatic narrative. One enormous battlefield is shown stretching over an area of ten square miles and upon these plains and trenches 10,000 soldiers clash in a maelstrom of fire that as real as if you were an eyewitness of the actual occurrence. Holding the great effects in a story as tender and true as love and romance can be pictured. There are tears and smiles, noble sacrifices and heroic deeds of personal valor. You see the war start after being shown the cause which precipitated it. You see the great generals of the contending sections playing their desperate game of human pawns moved into the field of slaughter. Thus comes the agreement for peace and Lincoln sets about his superhuman task of healing the wounds by the application of that great love which made him the towering figure of his age. A fanatic's bullet stills the heart which beat so evenly for all humanity. The South is thrown back into a worse fate than war. Their lands are over-run by a hungry horde of peaceful plantations and grateful. The poor negro is expelled into a false undeveloped of liberty and in the ignorance is led into excesses by these soulwages of fortune. Out of this comes the ghostly grudge crusades of a terrible era to once more set things right and return the lands and liberties of peace to their rightful owners and over the lands of misery sounds the chorus of brotherhood in an allegorical dream which holds the reunion of the divided sections and the welding of that national spirit which has made this nation so great after its baptism in its own blood.

A wonderful score of operatic researches accompanied the narrative. It is all done upon a most stupendous scale. No detail has been overlooked. The drama is outlined and told in the most graphic form that has yet been devised by the brain of man for such a purpose. No wonder this work is epoch-making. It has set up new standards which it will be almost equal for many a year to come.

TO JAPANESE GOVERNMENT
WASHINGTON, June 14.—One hundred and fifty thousand tons of steel have been allocated to the Japanese government by the war industries board, completing the first step in the reciprocal agreement entered into whereby Japanese will build ships for the United States.

TORONTO, June 14.—It is altogether probable that J. G. Connell, a prominent Toronto lawyer, will support Hon. H. C. Henry, new minister of justice in the Ontario government, who is appealing to the farmers of East York for re-election.

CHAPLIN'S PET DOG IS DEAD OF
BROKEN HEART

Pined Away While His Master
Was on Liberty Loan
Tour

A pall of sorrow was thrown over the Chaplin studios' organization when, after every attempt of medical science had failed to save or even prolong the life of the dearly loved "Mutt," the now nationally famous little mongrel, co-star with the inimitable Charlie Chaplin in "A Dog's Life," to be seen at the Empress the last three days of next week.

After a siege of illness of four weeks' duration, with each day gradually drawing "Mutt" closer to the end, the petted idol of the world's greatest comedy king, died in his final resting place. The veterinary seemed every condition in his mind that would have been given even if it meant the loss of a broken heart.

"Mutt" died of a broken heart and the end was hastened through self-sacrifice. Although "Mutt" was everything for "Mutt" to live for and there was nothing so great as the absence of his master, who was the third Liberty loan in the Southern States, denied the poor little mongrel the one thing he wanted—the loving attention of his master.

As far as it is known, "Mutt" came into the world friendly. He appeared as the one thing he wanted—love and sheltering mongrel had scared his death. Charlie's interest in covering the war was not long after "Mutt" was with the star from early morning until long after "Mutt" was done for the day. Charlie was the only one who could feed "Mutt."

A little mound of earth, close to the spot where "Mutt" lay in the char after "Mutt" dies up the purpose of money for his master in "A Dog's Life," is the burial ground. The grave is surrounded by old castles, castles and other relics. There are no more tributes, but one can still see the way "Mutt" lived. The tombstone is not of granite, it is an old shoe, and on the sole is rudely scratched, "Mutt." Died April 25—A Broken Heart.

FROM FRENCH

"Let's Get a Divorce" is Suitable
Vehicle for Paramount
Star

"Let's Get a Divorce," in which Billie Burke will appear at the Monarch theatre for three days, starting next Monday, is based upon "Divorce," the play by Victorien Sardou, produced in New York a short time ago with Grace George in the principal role. The screen adaptation was made by John Emerson and Anita Loos, who have collaborated on many successful cinema stories. Anita Loos is seen to splendid advantage in this production, which proves an adequate vehicle for her talents and beauty. The production has been skillfully handled by Director Charles Glynn.

Just Does On Romance
Cyprien Marcey, an orphan in a convent in France, craves romance and manages to indulge in numerous flirtations, despite her contracted engagement. The Mother Superior has taken a great interest in Cyprien, and when Henri de Francville, a brother of Cyprien's, chums asks permission to marry the woman, the Mother Superior is a student and realizes Cyprien's love of adventure. He plots with the Mother Superior to arrange a romantic elopement. The marriage is quite satisfactory to Cyprien until Henri settles down to be her husband. Pertinent Facts for Coal Consumers World conditions are abnormal. The times are out of joint. What is to be cannot be judged by what has been. With the forces of civilization organized for destruction, as they are today, there can be no comparison with conditions as they were when all these forces were organized for production. All questions must be dealt with as they are; not as they were, or as they ought to be.

A coal shortage in Alberta during the coming winter is unthinkable, judged by all previous standards. There is probably as much coal in Alberta as in all the rest of the North American Continent. It is more readily accessible than the coal of any other part of the Continent. Coal has never been short in Alberta since settlement began; therefore—the argument runs—coal cannot be short in Alberta during the coming winter. The trouble with this argument is that previous standards have no relation to present conditions.

Last year Canada imported approximately $100,000,000 worth of coal and fuel oil. A large part of the fuel oil was used by the land and water transportation interests of British Columbia. These transportation interests must now depend on local coal instead of on imported oil. The transcontinental railways which were largely independent of Alberta coal mines must now get Alberta coal or cease to run.

The latest issue of the "Saturday Evening Post" warns its millions of readers in the United States that "although it is balmy 'June, frost is only a hundred days away, and that while the Fuel Administrator urges people to order their winter supply of fuel 'early, the dealers are quoted as saying: 'As to when I can deliver 'your winter supply I have no more idea than the man in the moon. 'I haven't a thing in sight, not even any tangible sort of promise.' " The "Bache Review" for May 18th predicts a worse coal shortage in the United States next winter than last. The "Monetary Times" of Toronto warns the people of Ontario that the coal position of that province is extremely serious owing to its almost complete dependence on the United States for coal, and that, apart from increased railway rates, still higher prices are likely to prevail. The Canadian Railway Board advises by newspaper advertisement the people of Winnipeg and Manitoba that they must "forestall a fuel 'famine or freeze." They say "Cars, engines and men are available for coal movement now. After September 1st these facilities 'will be in the grain service. Next winter's coal supply must come 'from western mines, and unless it is moved now, suffering and 'distress from lack of fuel will surely result next winter."

Under ordinary circumstances information as to these conditions would only be of academic interest to the people of Alberta, because, having the coal mines near or all around them, they could be sure that, whatever happened to the rest of the country, they would be supplied. But circumstances are not ordinary; the Governments of Canada and the United States have undertaken to control fuel supply. A suggestion has been made from the source of authority that if Alberta dealers and householders do not secure in advance their supplies for next winter, their needs may then be ignored in order to meet conditions elsewhere.

Every householder in Alberta can secure his winter's supply of coal now. If he buys now he knows the price he will have to pay, and he need not concern himself as to what the future holds for others less fortunately situated or less provident than himself. If he buys now he pays a small advance upon what he bought his coal for during the past winter. If he does not buy now—first, he is not sure that he will be able to get coal when he wants it; and, second, he can form no idea as to what the price will be. All conditions point, however, to the price being increased.

Should a hard winter strike in early, the question of price would cease to be a consideration compared with the necessity of getting the coal; and everybody knows what that must mean in the matter of price. It would not be a question of the profits of coal operators or the wages of coal miners. It would be a question of who should have coal and who should do without. With towns, cities, and industrial enterprises bidding against each other, no limit can be put on the prices that may have to be paid.

Coal used to be much cheaper at Edmonton than it is now. At one time William Hamberstone mined coal and delivered it to the consumer at $1.50 per ton. These were not the "good" old days; they were the bad old days, when times were inexpressibly hard, and to make a living absorbed the maximum energy and effort of the people. As times improved, prices rose, and stood for a number of years at $2.50 per ton, delivered. Since then there have been increases from time to time. The winter before last the price was $4.50; last winter $5.00; and now $5.50 to $6.00 for the best lump coal.

Instinctively the consumer resents these successive increases of price, and is apt to consider a statement of the possibility of further increase as a threat and a hold-up. So far as the mine operators are concerned, they contend that these successive increases have been rendered necessary by change of conditions, and that they come by force of circumstances beyond their control. The withdrawal of many thousands of men from industrial life, due to the war, has automatically increased wages by decreasing the labor supply. A very large part of the cost of coal is the cost of the labor that mines it—not only the man who actually does the mining, but the man employed in all the various activities necessary for the operation of a mine. And the price received for the best lump coal is not the price received for the mine run. One of the best domestic coal mines reports only 34.65 per cent. of the total product is lump coal, 42.35 per cent. egg coal and 23 per cent. slack. The consumer is paying now from $5.50 to $6.00 for the best lump, and $4.50 to $5.00 for the egg coal. Of the slack about 10 per cent. is total waste and the remaining 13 per cent. brings from 50c to $1.35 per ton.

As cost of living has increased, so wages have been increased. Cost of haulage has increased; railway charges have been increased. A Provincial Government Tax was invoked to require two increases in wages of miners, based on the increased cost of living, within the past year.

The mine operator has no option but to pass these charges on to the consumer, or he could not stay in business. It is obvious that as the operator has had to meet these increased charges, which have occurred during the past year, by increasing the cost to the consumer, so further increased charges, should they occur, will have to be met in the same way.

The cost of production must be paid by the consumer, or production cannot continue, and production of coal is essential to the life, as well as the business, of the people of the entire prairie west.

Circumstances might arise that would make coal cheaper during the coming winter than it is now, but what these circumstances might be is utterly inconceivable at the present time. On the other hand, every indication points to necessarily increased—and possibly very largely increased—prices during the coming winter, with the still greater possibility of coal shortage, without regard to prices.

From every point of view it would be the part of wisdom for the Alberta consumer to lay in his coal supply now, when he can get it, and when he knows what he will have to pay for it. Today he can be sure that he will get first-class coal if he pays the price; but under the stress of demand that may—and almost certainly will—occur in winter, he may then be glad to take what he can get, at whatever price he may be called upon to pay.

There is an important feature in connection with the question of coal prices and coal supply that should not be overlooked. The Pennsylvania mines are worked all the year round. The domestic coal mines of Alberta have hitherto only been worked at full capacity during the winter months. At the same time the mines must be kept in order; the summer demand must be supplied; overhead and capital charges run on just the same; with the result that a loss is necessarily made on the coal mined during the summer, which loss must be made up out of increased profit on the coal mined during the winter. This is a factor in maintaining a higher price for Alberta coal than other circumstances would warrant.

If the demand can be so adjusted as to keep the mines going at a fair rate during the summer, it will be possible to sell coal cheaper all the year round, than it is now, when the profits of winter must pay for the losses of summer. It is good business from every point of view, both present and future, for the Alberta consumer to stock up in summer with his winter's coal.
